Kelly Che, the event host, previously worked in Korea as an interpreter for visits by prominent global figures. After immigrating to the United States, she served as a reporter and news anchor for Korean-American media outlets such as Radio Korea and Radio Seoul. She later spent many years as a broadcaster at LA18, the largest Asian television station in Southern California. Currently, she works at the Korean Cultural Center Los Angeles while continuing her active career as an event host, interpreter, and media professional throughout the Southern California region. She is also engaged in a variety of musical activities as a member of the jazz band Chestondi Project.
